BREMEN MAY FLY TO NEW YORK TOMORROW

GERMANS HOPE TO TAKE OFF FROM GREENLY ISLAND

KOEHL SENDS MESSAGE TO THAT EFFECT TO MONTREAL, CANADA

JUNKERS PLANE WITH REPAIRS AND PETROL STANDS BY AT MONTREAL

Montreal, Que., April 17—(UP)—Determined on flying their sturdy Junkers airplane Bremen to Mitchell Field, Long Island—the destination they decided on in Berlin weeks ago—Capt. Hermann Koehl and Baron Gunther Von Huenefeld hoped to take off from ice-bound Greenly Island tomorrow morning.

A message was received here from Koehl saying that the attempt to fly out of the icy territory, on which they were forced to land Friday, would be made Wednesday. He gave no details.

Koehl and Von Huenefeld remained at Grenely Island even though Maj. James Fitzmaurice, their comrade on the trans-Atlantic venture, left yesterday with Duke Schiller, the Canadian relief pilot. It was presumed they had continued repairs on the Bremen, which was damaged when the forced landing was made last Friday.

The message from Koehl gave no indication what destination would be selected for the Wednesday flight, or whether the two Germans would attempt to make their triumphal tour straight down to New York.

Meanwhile the Junkers plane F-13 remained at a landing field here where it arrived yesterday bringing Fraulein Herta Junkers, Edward Junkers, and Pilot Fred Melchior. They had petrol and some repair parts for the Bremen.

Fraulein Junkers said she was undecided as to the next move of the relief Junkers, but she had no intentions of flying to Greenly Island.

New York, April 17.—New York began preparations today to give the German-Irish fliers an elaborate reception, rivaling the one accorded Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh when he returned from his Paris flight.

Baron Gunther Von Huenefeld, Major James Fitzmaurice and Captain Hermann Koehl will be the center of admiring throngs for a whole week. Luncheons, theater parties, a water carnival and an official dinner are only a few features on the program.

The city's noisiest greeting, of course, will be the parade up Broadway when ticker tape and torn up telephone books will shower down in a paper blizzard. A formal reception will be held at city hall where a grandstand seating 3,000 is to be built.

Mayor James J. Walker sent the following telegram to Fitzmaurice last night:

"All the citizens of the city of New York, irrespective of race, color or creed, are awaiting impatiently the arrival of all three of the Bremen crew. Official program has been arranged on this basis, to-wit: Simultaneous reception to Captain Koehl, Baron Von Huenefeld and yourself. I wish to renew my sincere congratulations."

Grover Whalen, the city's official greeter, decided that the fliers would be taken directly from Mitchell field to the Ritz Carlton hotel where they will rest for a day.

St. Johns, N. F., April 17.—The trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen bumped and swayed dangerously for 20 yards over the rough ice field where it landed on Greenly Island before coming to a stop, according to authentic advices received here.

Contrary to previous reports which said that the plane landed on the frozen surface of a small lake or pond, today's advices indicated that the landing was made in a field covered with ice.

The under-carriage of the plane was damaged. The bottom of the fuselage was dented and the tips of the propeller were damaged.

From the foregoing dispatch detailing the extent of the damage to the Bremen, it would appear that there is little foundation for reports that the remaining members of the plane's crew will fly her off Greenly Island today. If the damage is as bad as the St. Johns advices indicate, several days may be required to make repairs.

Montreal, April 17.—Delayed dispatches from Clark City, Que., said Colonel James E. Fitzmaurice and C. A. "Duke" Schiller planned to leave Natashquan, where they spent last night, at 8 A. M. today for Murray Bay, Que. They expected to reach Murray Bay at noon.

According to present plans, Fitzmaurice will go from Murray Bay to Quebec City by special train. He should arrive in Quebec City this afternoon.

Fitzmaurice had intended to go to New York to get parts needed to make repairs on the German plane Bremen, in which he flew with his two German companions across the Atlantic.

It is now believed, however, that with the arrival in Montreal of the Junkers plane with Miss Herta Junkers, daughter of the Bremen's designer, Fitzmaurice will change his plans.

Miss Junkers said today she did not know whether to fly to Quebec or Murray Bay to meet Fitzmaurice or to await him in Montreal.

Ottawa, Que., April 17.—According to a telegram received by J. E. Gobeil, general superintendent of the government telegraph here, the Canadian ice cutter Montcalm will take the German plane Bremen to Halifax for repairs.

The telegram, sent from Quebec, said Baron Gunther Von Huenefeld and Captain Koehl would be brought to New York by a relief plane.

COMPANIONATE MARRIAGE COUPLE NOW IN THE MOVIES

JOSEPHINE HALDEMAN-JULIUS AND AUBREY ROSELLE TAKE SCREEN TESTS

IF SCREENING WELL WILL APPEAR IN "COMPANIONATE MARRIAGE" VERSION

By GEORGE H. BEALE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Hollywood, Cal., April 17. — The world's most widely heralded companionate marriage couple probably will be seen in motion pictures in the near future.

Josephine Haldeman-Julius, the highly publicized companionate bride, and Aubrey Roselle, her equally well known companiate husband, are taking screen tests.

In the event their features register favorably they most likely will be seen in the screen version of Judge Ben Lindsey's "Companionate Marriage."

Josephine and Aubrey quit the stage yesterday and took up housekeeping—companionate, she indicated, when she made Aubrey "watch that toast and don't let it burn."

Josephine and Aubrey discussed their screen ambitions and their mutual dislike for St. S. Millard, film producer, as they prepared a companionate breakfast.

Companionate arguments, it was indicated, end like the more ordinary kind for it was decided that they must have coffee and it was Aubrey who was elected to put on his coat and run to the corner delicatessen.

St. S. Millard must be remembered as the man who presented Queen Marie to Seattle when she was touring the United States. More recently he has been exploiting "men only" films featuring Corlis Palmer, the Georgia beauty contest winner who married Eugene Brewster, magazine magnate.

Josephine and Aubrey came here last week at the insistence of Millard and under the belief they were to appear in vaudeville. They refused to continue after four performances brought out that they were sort of a side show and drawing card for the "men only" act.

"When we came here Aubrey lived at the Athletic club and I lived at the Biltmore hotel, but we decided to get an apartment and take a try at housekeeping. Aubrey's a big help. He lights the gas and does things like that."

Aubrey, having successfully purchased the coffee and preparing to make another trip for the cream, admitted "the gist of this whole companionate business is that we go 50-50 on everything."

Chicago, April 17.—(UP) — The Overland Limited, crack Northwestern railroad passenger train, was held up by a lone bandit here last night.

The bandit, who had boarded the westbound train at the terminal, posing as a friend bidding good-bye to a passenger, robbed it as it sped through the city and escaped before it passed the city limits.

The amount of the loot was uncertain, but railroad officials estimated it between $5,000 and $7,000. They awaited reports from the train crew on the names of those robbed and the amount taken from each.

The bandit lined up the passengers riding in the observation car, collected their wallets and jewelry, then went into the dining car, railroad detectives said. There he held up the steward, pulled the emergency cord to stop the train, leaped into the darkness and escaped.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS GET COMPROMISES

PROSPECTS OF HEATED CONTESTS OVER PROVISIONS IN MEASURE

PRES. COOLIDGE OPPOSES IT AND WHITE HOUSE INDICATES HE MAY VETO IT

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, April 17.—The house begins consideration today of the Jones-Reid Mississippi flood control bill, with prospects of heated contests over provisions in the measure which President Coolidge opposes and which the White House has indicated may bring a veto if left in the bill.

Republican leaders, working at the president's direction, secured some compromises before the bill was taken up today, but were unable to reach a general agreement that would meet all the president's demands.

Because of failure of a binding agreement covering all disputed points between republican leaders and Chairman Reid of the house flood control committee, followers of the latter were predicting today that the measure will go through with few changes. They claimed support of practically the entire democratic membership of the house.

General debate on the measure, which began today, probably will last two or three days, so republican leaders have an opportunity to continue their negotiations. These will revolve largely around the principle of local contributions.

This remains the bone of contention and represents the greatest difference now between the White House and flood control leaders. President Coolidge has yielded considerably on this point in the last few days, according to Chairman Madden of the house appropriations committee, who is directing negotiations.

Now all the president demands is that states furnish the levee rights of way on the main river, Madden explained, a negligible contribution, but one that would maintain the principle for which Coolidge is contending. On several occasions in the past few weeks, the White House has demanded that the states furnish the land for floodways as well, totalling nearly 4,000,000 acres, arguing that these lands were held largely by large land-owners and corporations.

Reid has refused steadfastly to yield on this point, maintaining the federal government must pay the entire cost. The biggest battle on the floor will come when administration republicans attempt to amend the measure to require some form of local contribution.

Reid has signified his willingness to grant the president's wish that the chief executive have jurisdiction over the project, working through the secretary of war and army engineers. The power of contracting for all work would be placed under this authority instead of the Mississippi river commission, which the president is willing should have administrative authority. A loose contracting authority, he holds, might result in extravagance.

THOS. W. MILLER KNEW NOTHING OF WILL HAYS

NOR OF HARRY SINCLAIR OR SEN. SOLEMAN DUPONT HANDLING BONDS

OF THE MYSTERIOUS CONTINENTAL TRADING COMPANY IN OIL CASE

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, April 17. — Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, told the senate Teapot Dome committee today he knew nothing about the activities of Will Hays, Harry Sinclair and Sen. Coleman Dupont in handling bonds of the mysterious Continental Trading Company.

Miller denied statements recently made to the committee in a strange telegram signed "A. D. Wilson," New York, charging Miller with handling Continental bonds being traced by the committee. The telegram said Miller fell out with Dupont when he (Miller) refused to give up some of the bonds.

"I know nothing about the bond matters, except what I have read in the newspapers," Miller said.

The witness said he knew the republican national committee had borrowed $300,000 from the Empire Trust Company. ($75,000 of the bonds given Hays by Sinclair were used to pay off part of this loan.)

Miller said that Empire bank officials attempted to get him to deposit alien property funds in the bank—as a mark of favor for the loan.

Miller said he had not seen Dupont in three years and had never talked with Hays about Continental bonds. He said he had nothing to do with the Sinclair contribution to the republican national committee.

Answering questions of Chairman Nye, Miller said he never had handled any liberty bonds in the campaign. He then was excused and Mrs. John T. Pratt, widow of the New York republican leader, was called.

Mrs. Pratt said she knew nothing about Hays giving her late husband $50,000 of the $260,000 of Continental bonds Hays received from Sinclair.

CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN OTTAWA AND WASHINGTON

CANADA TAKES POSITION THAT TECHNICAL PROBLEMS MUST BE SOLVED FIRST

SECRETARY KELLOGG IN NOTE OF APRIL 7 INVITES CANADA TO NEGOTIATIONS

By MAURITZ A. HALLGREN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, April 17. — Serious obstacles still block the way to construction of a deep waterway from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic by way of the St. Lawrence river. This became apparent with publication today of correspondence between Washington and Ottawa on the subject in which Canada took the position that a waterway treaty cannot be negotiated until certain technical problems have been solved.

Despite this attitude, Secretary Kellogg, in a note dated April 7, again invited Canada to institute negotiations. He suggested that the treaty negotiations could be conducted concurrently with discussions of the engineering and other problems which are yet to be settled. A reply to this suggestion is being awaited by the state department.

Disposition of the water power to be generated as a part of the waterway project appeared to be the principal obstacle to an early agreement. In a note dated January 31 the Canadian minister, Vincent Massey, asserted that "the development of power on the Canadian side should not exceed the capacity of the Canadian market to absorb it." He also said "public opinion in Canada is opposed to the export of hydro-electric power."

Replying on March 12, Kellogg declared "the United States fully recognizes the right of the Dominion of Canada to the ownership and use of the Canadian share of the power which may be developed in the international section of the waterway," but inasmuch as the United States would build that section, if the Canadian plan is approved, "it would seem that the United States ought to be permitted to develop its power and use its half, the other half to be used by Canada or not as it should desire."

Canada likewise wants the entire engineering problem reopened, according to Massey's note on January 31, even though this aspect has been studied for a number of years by a joint Canadian-American board, which recently made a final and exhaustive report on the subject. Other points raised by Massey concerned the apportion of costs and the division of labor. The minister suggested Canada should bear $400,000,000 of the costs, and the United States $383,183,000, but included in Canada's share would be the expenses already incurred in building and maintaining the old St. Lawrence ship channel and canal and the Welland canal.

Kellogg pointed out that these problems could be considered during the treaty negotiations, but he objected to the inclusion of the Welland and St. Lawrence canal items in the Canadian share. He said the United States would not object to reconsidering the engineering question although he could see no reason why the treaty discussions should not go forward at the same time.

"It might be desirable," he said, "for the negotiations to go on concurrently with the examination of such engineers as their advice and assistance would be necessary."

Further delay in the ultimate building of the waterway was seen in the necessity of the Canadian government seeking an arrangement with the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, through which the waterway would pass. Court action is to be instituted to facilitate an understanding with these provinces, Massey's note said.

Chicago, April 17.—(UP) — The Overland Limited, crack Northwestern railroad passenger train, was held up by a lone bandit here last night.

The bandit, who had boarded the westbound train at the terminal, posing as a friend bidding good-bye to a passenger, robbed it as it sped through the city and escaped before it passed the city limits.

The amount of the loot was uncertain, but railroad officials estimated it between $5,000 and $7,000. They awaited reports from the train crew on the names of those robbed and the amount taken from each.

The bandit lined up the passengers riding in the observation car, collected their wallets and jewelry, then went into the dining car, railroad detectives said. There he held up the steward, pulled the emergency cord to stop the train, leaped into the darkness and escaped.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS GET COMPROMISES

PROSPECTS OF HEATED CONTESTS OVER PROVISIONS IN MEASURE

PRES. COOLIDGE OPPOSES IT AND WHITE HOUSE INDICATES HE MAY VETO IT

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, April 17.—The house begins consideration today of the Jones-Reid Mississippi flood control bill, with prospects of heated contests over provisions in the measure which President Coolidge opposes and which the White House has indicated may bring a veto if left in the bill.

Republican leaders, working at the president's direction, secured some compromises before the bill was taken up today, but were unable to reach a general agreement that would meet all the president's demands.

Because of failure of a binding agreement covering all disputed points between republican leaders and Chairman Reid of the house flood control committee, followers of the latter were predicting today that the measure will go through with few changes. They claimed support of practically the entire democratic membership of the house.

General debate on the measure, which began today, probably will last two or three days, so republican leaders have an opportunity to continue their negotiations. These will revolve largely around the principle of local contributions.

This remains the bone of contention and represents the greatest difference now between the White House and flood control leaders. President Coolidge has yielded considerably on this point in the last few days, according to Chairman Madden of the house appropriations committee, who is directing negotiations.

Now all the president demands is that states furnish the levee rights of way on the main river, Madden explained, a negligible contribution, but one that would maintain the principle for which Coolidge is contending. On several occasions in the past few weeks, the White House has demanded that the states furnish the land for floodways as well, totalling nearly 4,000,000 acres, arguing that these lands were held largely by large land-owners and corporations.

Reid has refused steadfastly to yield on this point, maintaining the federal government must pay the entire cost. The biggest battle on the floor will come when administration republicans attempt to amend the measure to require some form of local contribution.

Reid has signified his willingness to grant the president's wish that the chief executive have jurisdiction over the project, working through the secretary of war and army engineers. The power of contracting for all work would be placed under this authority instead of the Mississippi river commission, which the president is willing should have administrative authority. A loose contracting authority, he holds, might result in extravagance.

THOS. W. MILLER KNEW NOTHING OF WILL HAYS

NOR OF HARRY SINCLAIR OR SEN. SOLEMAN DUPONT HANDLING BONDS

OF THE MYSTERIOUS CONTINENTAL TRADING COMPANY IN OIL CASE

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, April 17. — Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, told the senate Teapot Dome committee today he knew nothing about the activities of Will Hays, Harry Sinclair and Sen. Coleman Dupont in handling bonds of the mysterious Continental Trading Company.

Miller denied statements recently made to the committee in a strange telegram signed "A. D. Wilson," New York, charging Miller with handling Continental bonds being traced by the committee. The telegram said Miller fell out with Dupont when he (Miller) refused to give up some of the bonds.

"I know nothing about the bond matters, except what I have read in the newspapers," Miller said.

The witness said he knew the republican national committee had borrowed $300,000 from the Empire Trust Company. ($75,000 of the bonds given Hays by Sinclair were used to pay off part of this loan.)

Miller said that Empire bank officials attempted to get him to deposit alien property funds in the bank—as a mark of favor for the loan.

Miller said he had not seen Dupont in three years and had never talked with Hays about Continental bonds. He said he had nothing to do with the Sinclair contribution to the republican national committee.

Answering questions of Chairman Nye, Miller said he never had handled any liberty bonds in the campaign. He then was excused and Mrs. John T. Pratt, widow of the New York republican leader, was called.

Mrs. Pratt said she knew nothing about Hays giving her late husband $50,000 of the $260,000 of Continental bonds Hays received from Sinclair.

CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN OTTAWA AND WASHINGTON

CANADA TAKES POSITION THAT TECHNICAL PROBLEMS MUST BE SOLVED FIRST

SECRETARY KELLOGG IN NOTE OF APRIL 7 INVITES CANADA TO NEGOTIATIONS

By MAURITZ A. HALLGREN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, April 17. — Serious obstacles still block the way to construction of a deep waterway from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic by way of the St. Lawrence river. This became apparent with publication today of correspondence between Washington and Ottawa on the subject in which Canada took the position that a waterway treaty cannot be negotiated until certain technical problems have been solved.

Despite this attitude, Secretary Kellogg, in a note dated April 7, again invited Canada to institute negotiations. He suggested that the treaty negotiations could be conducted concurrently with discussions of the engineering and other problems which are yet to be settled. A reply to this suggestion is being awaited by the state department.

Disposition of the water power to be generated as a part of the waterway project appeared to be the principal obstacle to an early agreement. In a note dated January 31 the Canadian minister, Vincent Massey, asserted that "the development of power on the Canadian side should not exceed the capacity of the Canadian market to absorb it." He also said "public opinion in Canada is opposed to the export of hydro-electric power."

Replying on March 12, Kellogg declared "the United States fully recognizes the right of the Dominion of Canada to the ownership and use of the Canadian share of the power which may be developed in the international section of the waterway," but inasmuch as the United States would build that section, if the Canadian plan is approved, "it would seem that the United States ought to be permitted to develop its power and use its half, the other half to be used by Canada or not as it should desire."

Canada likewise wants the entire engineering problem reopened, according to Massey's note on January 31, even though this aspect has been studied for a number of years by a joint Canadian-American board, which recently made a final and exhaustive report on the subject. Other points raised by Massey concerned the apportion of costs and the division of labor. The minister suggested Canada should bear $400,030,000 of the costs, and the United States $383,183,000, but included in Canada's share would be the expenses already incurred in building and maintaining the old St. Lawrence ship channel and canal and the Welland canal.

Kellogg pointed out that these problems could be considered during the treaty negotiations, but he objected to the inclusion of the Welland and St. Lawrence canal items in the Canadian share. He said the United States would not object to reconsidering the engineering question although he could see no reason why the treaty discussions should not go forward at the same time.

"It might be desirable," he said, "for the negotiations to go on concurrently with the examination of such engineers as their advice and assistance would be necessary."

Further delay in the ultimate building of the waterway was seen in the necessity of the Canadian government seeking an arrangement with the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, through which the waterway would pass. Court action is to be instituted to facilitate an understanding with these provinces, Massey's note said.

GENERAL ELECTRIC Refrigerator

Wherever you go you hear people praising the General Electric Refrigerator. Almost overnight it has taken a prominent place in the thoughts of homemakers.

One hears of its remarkable simplicity. That it hasn't a single belt, fan or drain-pipe. That it hasn't a bit of machinery under the cabinet—or in the basement. That it never needs oiling. There are many, many comments on the quietness with which it operates. There is much enthusiasm for the extreme roominess and the splendid strength of its gleaming, up-on-legs cabinet.

Overnight, it seems . . . . but for more than fifteen years the vast laboratories of General Electric have been busy with the development of this truly revolutionary refrigerator. Will you not come in and see the various models? Time payments can be arranged, if you prefer.

GENERAL ELECTRIC Refrigerator

Wherever you go you hear people praising the General Electric Refrigerator. Almost overnight it has taken a prominent place in the thoughts of homemakers.

One hears of its remarkable simplicity. That it hasn't a single belt, fan or drain-pipe. That it hasn't a bit of machinery under the cabinet—or in the basement. That it never needs oiling. There are many, many comments on the quietness with which it operates. There is much enthusiasm for the extreme roominess and the splendid strength of its gleaming, up-on-legs cabinet.

Overnight, it seems . . . . but for more than fifteen years the vast laboratories of General Electric have been busy with the development of this truly revolutionary refrigerator. Will you not come in and see the various models? Time payments can be arranged, if you prefer.

Yesterday's Hero—Old Cy Williams, starting his seventeenth major league season and now relegated to the job of part time hitter for the Phillies, drove out a home run with two men on base and beat the New York Giants, 7 to 5. It was the first defeat of the year for McGraw's club.

Another club sustained its first setback of the 1928 season when the St. Louis Browns faded and curled up before the masterly pitching of Al Thomas of the White Sox, who blanked them, 7 to 0. Thomas hit a homer off Dick Coggman.

Marty McManus, Detroit third baseman, was yesterday's goat. His two errors proved costly to the Tigers, who sustained their fifth defeat of the year, losing to the Cleveland Indians, 5 to 4.

"Goose" Goslin's bat contributed largely to the third successive defeat of the Philadelphia Athletics, who were beaten by the Washington Senators, 5 to 4.

Burleigh Grimes, obtained by the Pirates from the Giants, was effective in his second start of the season, while the National league champions hit Eppa Rixey and Jim Edwards hard and defeated the Cincinnati Reds, 8 to 1.

Guy Bush of the Cubs proved the right pitcher to stop the heavy hitting of Frankie Frisch and his fellow Cardinals, who went down to defeat, 6 to 3, when Chicago's artillery opened up on Jess Haines. Earl Webb, who is filling in for Hack Wilson, hit a homer.

A mix-up over a pop fly cost Jess Petty his chance against the Braves, who won their first game of the year by beating the Robins, 3 to 2.

George Pipgras' pitching and Lou Gehrig's homer, his second of the season, helped the Yankees defeat the Boston Red Sox, 7 to 2.

ROSS WINS 1ST FALL, BECK 2ND, ROSS THE 3RD

LARGE CROWD OF FANS, MANY LADIES PRESENT, AT THE MAT CARNIVAL

THE PRELIMINARIES INCLUDED A "FIVE" SOME BOXING MATCH

In one of the fastest and best wrestling matches seen in the Brainerd lake region, Fred Ross of Pequot champion of Minnesota and the northwest, defeated Johnny Beck, of Brainerd, champion of Iowa.

It was good clean work by both contestants throughout the match and not one bit of stalling. The first fall went to Ross in 18 mixutes when he threw Beck with a double wrist lock.

In the second setto Beck came back strong as a lion and made short work of Ross. In just eight and a half minutes the Brainerd boy pinned Ross to the mat with a double arm scissors and a short wristlock.

Beck retired and was rubbed down, while Ross sat on his chair in his corner and rubbed his punished arms. Big Bill Beth came to Ross' corner and whispered to him, undoubtedly giving his brother Pequot wrestler some fine points.

The third setto started and most of the fans expected Back to sail in and win. The round lasted 13 and a half minutes and in the last five minutes Ross clamped on a double crotch hold and arm hold that spelled the doom of the Brainerd man.

Fritz Hanson of International Falls issued a challenge to the winner.

G. A. Robideau of Pine River was referee and announced that Jack Taylor is to wrestle Big Bill Beth of Pequot at Pine River on April 26.

The preliminaries included two wrestling bouts which were tame. Shaeffer of Pine River defeated Knutson of Pequot. Glen Housted of Pine River defeated Ray Nelson of Brainerd. Housted took the first and only fall of the match in 19 and a half minutes with a headlock.

Five kids furnished the most amusement. They were put in the ring and instructed that each was to use his mitts and the last man standing to be the winner. The gladiators were Orren Smith, Clarence Reishen, Dale Headly, Clifford Lindbergh and Glen Knutson. The four small kids turned on their common enemy, the tallest boy, and quickly knocked him down and he was dropped from the mat. One other shaver succumbed.

In the second round, with three on hand, there was a regular dog fight. The smallest kid walloped his partner down and out and so fierce was his rush that he slipped and fell and eliminated himself. This left a surprised tow-head, Dale Headly, as survivor of the five-cornered match. Change was showered in on the mat and distributed to the five.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

The question of whether the Olympic Games are worth while—whether they do not hamper rather than help international amity—has been raised in Great Britain.

Difference of opinion arising between nations over amateur rulings, introduction of sectional sports, and intranational strife over control of the competing athletes are cited as reasons for a withdrawal from the Olympics on the part of the British.

"The British nation, intensely interested in sport, is vastly uninterested in the Olympic games," says the Daily Express editorially.

A little more success in winning points at the modern Olympiads might butter the Britons' bread more to their taste. It is inevitable that the monotonous regularity of American victories should cause lack of interest in Great Britain.

Yet the British have nothing to complain of in the performances of their runners at Paris in 1924, for Abrahams won the 100 metres, Liddell the 400 and Lowe the 800, a record which aroused envy among Americans who could win but one first place in an individual running event on the flat.

Britains, devoted to tennis, also have lost interest in the Davis Cup competition, because they no longer are certain of a place in the challenge round. Success is quite a tonic.

It is possible that the British are right, however, about the Olympic games being none too beneficial for international amity.

One can go right back to antiquity and find that such has been the case. The Greek cities used to war about the first Olympiads, the amateur rules were just as strictly drawn and pliably applied as today, and the boys of the A. A. U. who like to wear the tall hats and badges and pose at the head of the parade had their prototypes in ancient Hellas.

The qualifications of a contender in the original Olympic games of the seventh and eighth centuries before Christ were insisted upon rigidly.

A month before the games were to begin all competitors, men, boys and horses, presented themselves at Elis where they demonstrated to the Hellanodicae their right to participate. The Hellanodicae were judges, elected for the term of a single Olympiad, who had taken sacred oaths and spent ten months preparing themselves for their tasks.

The candidate had to be Greek and free-born, a citizen and religious. He also had to be reasonably well fixed for spot cash money, because training and travel as well as gifts to the gods were costly in those ancient days.

The prospective contestants testified to the Hellanodicae that they had been in training for ten months, and then proceeded to spend another month in even stricter dieting and exercise. It might interest Jimmy de Forrest and some of our modern trainers to know that for more than 200 years the athletes got nothing but cheese to eat for an entire month previous to the contests.

Those who are inclined to deplore the modern tendency to glorify a successful athlete out of all due proportion need not deceive themselves that such has not always been the custom. The "Red Grange sweaters" and "Babe Ruth chewing gum" are not products of twentieth century invention. They were known in 700 B. C. The Olympionikae, as the victors then were known, were showered with every conceivable honor and opportunity for living in luxury ever after.

BASEBALL HISTORY HAS A WAY OF REPEATING ITSELF

YEAR AGO YANKEES WALTZED INTO FIRST PLACE, WINNING SIX GAMES

THIS SEASON TO DATE THEY ARE ONLY UNDEFEATED CLUB IN EITHER LEAGUE

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Writer)

New York, April 17—Baseball history has a way of repeating itself.

A year ago the New York Yankees waltzed right into first place in the American League by winning six games before sustaining their first defeat, after which they never were headed.

This season, to date, the Yankees are the only undefeated club in either league and the pace they are setting, and the quality of the opposition with which they are meeting, justifies the belief of their supporters that they will cut out an even faster pace than that of 1927.

There are many queer things about the current major league season, but none of them is the way the world's champions are playing baseball. Deprived of their second baseman and a couple of pitchers, the Yankees have set out to win ball games in a most convincing, matter-of-fact manner. Babe Ruth went through the first three games without a home run, but Lou Gehrig has produced a couple, and the pitching furnished by Herb Pennock, Wiley Moore, Waite Hoyt and George Pipgras has left little to be desired.

Miller Huggins had Pennock ready to shoot right back at the Red Sox this afternoon, while several other Yankee twirlers are clamoring for a chance to break into the winning column while the winning is good.

The Philadelphia Athletics, before the start of the 1927 season, presented the same sort of theoretical threat to the supremacy of the Yankees that they did when the current season opened. Last year, they collapsed at the tossing out of the first ball and failed to win one game in the opening series in New York. At the present moment, the Athletics are the only club in either league which has not won a single game. They have been defeated three times.

The Chicago White Sox won their first game of the year yesterday, after Ray Schalk, in disgust, had shaken up his line-up. Simultaneously, and for the same reason, the St. Louis Browns met with their first defeat of 1928.

The Boston Braves also broke into the "games won" column for the first time yesterday, while the New York Giants dropped their first of the year when old Cy Williams clouted a homer in the eighth inning.

Before the season opened, two clubs which were expected to start fast from the respective barriers were the Braves in the National League race and the Detroit Tigers in the American.

The Braves cannot be held too lightly for their slow start, for they have encountered some strong pitching, and were victims of little Andy Cohen in the opener. The Detroit Tigers, however, have been a pronounced disappointment. They could be pronounced rotten with perfect fairness.

George Moriarity's winter trades went back on him, and the players upon whom he has counted most have thrown him down. The Tigers have made 15 errors in six games thus far, and many of the misplays have been directly responsible for their defeat.

NO ENTRY FEE CHARGED, PRIZES GO TO FIRST, SECOND, THIRD WINNERS

A singles tournament will be run off at the local alleys next Saturday and Sunday to determine the singles champion of the city for the present bowling season.

This is to be a handicap affair, members of the city league carrying their handicaps and others rolling at scratch.

The matches will be four games across all alleys and no entry fee charged.

Robert Block, manager of the alleys, will make this an annual affair on his alleys and will put up suitable medals for the three bowlers placing first, second and third.

Shifts will be run off at 1:30 P. M., 2:45 P. M., 4:15 P. M., 7 P. M., 8:15 P. M. and 9:30 P. M. on both Saturday and Sunday, with a 10 A. M. shift Sunday morning.

Entries are coming in rapidly and city leaguers should engage their shift at once. They will be allowed to roll in the order of entry received.

Baker did not win by any wide margin, however, the crowd manifesting its displeasure with the judges' decision.

Yesterday's Hero—Old Cy Williams, starting his seventeenth major league season and now relegated to the job of part time hitter for the Phillies, drove out a home run with two men on base and beat the New York Giants, 7 to 5. It was the first defeat of the year for McGraw's club.

Another club sustained its first setback of the 1928 season when the St. Louis Browns faded and curled up before the masterly pitching of Al Thomas of the White Sox, who blanked them, 7 to 0. Thomas hit a homer off Dick Coggman.

Marty McManus, Detroit third baseman, was yesterday's goat. His two errors proved costly to the Tigers, who sustained their fifth defeat of the year, losing to the Cleveland Indians, 5 to 4.

"Goose" Goslin's bat contributed largely to the third successive defeat of the Philadelphia Athletics, who were beaten by the Washington Senators, 5 to 4.

Burleigh Grimes, obtained by the Pirates from the Giants, was effective in his second start of the season, while the National league champions hit Eppa Rixey and Jim Edwards hard and defeated the Cincinnati Reds, 8 to 1.

Guy Bush of the Cubs proved the right pitcher to stop the heavy hitting of Frankie Frisch and his fellow Cardinals, who went down to defeat, 6 to 3, when Chicago's artillery opened up on Jess Haines. Earl Webb, who is filling in for Hack Wilson, hit a homer.

A mix-up over a pop fly cost Jess Petty his chance against the Braves, who won their first game of the year by beating the Robins, 3 to 2.

George Pipgras' pitching and Lou Gehrig's homer, his second of the season, helped the Yankees defeat the Boston Red Sox, 7 to 2.

ROSS WINS 1ST FALL, BECK 2ND, ROSS THE 3RD

LARGE CROWD OF FANS, MANY LADIES PRESENT, AT THE MAT CARNIVAL

THE PRELIMINARIES INCLUDED A "FIVE" SOME BOXING MATCH

In one of the fastest and best wrestling matches seen in the Brainerd lake region, Fred Ross of Pequot champion of Minnesota and the northwest, defeated Johnny Beck, of Brainerd, champion of Iowa.

It was good clean work by both contestants throughout the match and not one bit of stalling. The first fall went to Ross in 18 minutes when he threw Beck with a double wrist lock.

In the second setto Beck came back strong as a lion and made short work of Ross. In just eight and a half minutes the Brainerd boy pinned Ross to the mat with a double arm scissors and a short wristlock.

Beck retired and was rubbed down, while Ross sat on his chair in his corner and rubbed his punished arms. Big Bill Beth came to Ross' corner and whispered to him, undoubtedly giving his brother Pequot wrestler some fine points.

The third setto started and most of the fans expected Back to sail in and win. The round lasted 13 and a half minutes and in the last five minutes Ross clamped on a double crotch hold and arm hold that spelled the doom of the Brainerd man.

Fritz Hanson of International Falls issued a challenge to the winner.

G. A. Robideau of Pine River was referee and announced that Jack Taylor is to wrestle Big Bill Beth of Pequot at Pine River on April 26.

The preliminaries included two wrestling bouts which were tame. Shaeffer of Pine River defeated Knutson of Pequot. Glen Housted of Pine River defeated Ray Nelson of Brainerd. Housted took the first and only fall of the match in 19 and a half minutes with a headlock.

Five kids furnished the most amusement. They were put in the ring and instructed that each was to use his mitts and the last man standing to be the winner. The gladiators were Orren Smith, Clarence Reishen, Dale Headly, Clifford Lindbergh and Glen Knutson. The four small kids turned on their common enemy, the tallest boy, and quickly knocked him down and he was dropped from the mat. One other shaver succumbed.

In the second round, with three on hand, there was a regular dog fight. The smallest kid walloped his partner down and out and so fierce was his rush that he slipped and fell and eliminated himself. This left a surprised tow-head, Dale Headly, as survivor of the five-cornered match. Change was showered in on the mat and distributed to the five.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

The question of whether the Olympic Games are worth while—whether they do not hamper rather than help international amity—has been raised in Great Britain.

Difference of opinion arising between nations over amateur rulings, introduction of sectional sports, and intranational strife over control of the competing athletes are cited as reasons for a withdrawal from the Olympics on the part of the British.

"The British nation, intensely interested in sport, is vastly uninterested in the Olympic games," says the Daily Express editorially.

A little more success in winning points at the modern Olympiads might butter the Britons' bread more to their taste. It is inevitable that the monotonous regularity of American victories should cause lack of interest in Great Britain.

Yet the British have nothing to complain of in the performances of their runners at Paris in 1924, for Abrahams won the 100 metres, Liddell the 400 and Lowe the 800, a record which aroused envy among Americans who could win but one first place in an individual running event on the flat.

Britains, devoted to tennis, also have lost interest in the Davis Cup competition, because they no longer are certain of a place in the challenge round. Success is quite a tonic.

It is possible that the British are right, however, about the Olympic games being none too beneficial for international amity.

One can go right back to antiquity and find that such has been the case. The Greek cities used to war about the first Olympiads, the amateur rules were just as strictly drawn and pliably applied as today, and the boys of the A. A. U. who like to wear the tall hats and badges and pose at the head of the parade had their prototypes in ancient Hellas.

The qualifications of a contender in the original Olympic games of the seventh and eighth centuries before Christ were insisted upon rigidly.

A month before the games were to begin all competitors, men, boys and horses, presented themselves at Elis where they demonstrated to the Hellanodicae their right to participate. The Hellanodicae were judges, elected for the term of a single Olympiad, who had taken sacred oaths and spent ten months preparing themselves for their tasks.

The candidate had to be Greek and free-born, a citizen and religious. He also had to be reasonably well fixed for spot cash money, because training and travel as well as gifts to the gods were costly in those ancient days.

The prospective contestants testified to the Hellanodicae that they had been in training for ten months, and then proceeded to spend another month in even stricter dieting and exercise. It might interest Jimmy de Forrest and some of our modern trainers to know that for more than 200 years the athletes got nothing but cheese to eat for an entire month previous to the contests.

Those who are inclined to deplore the modern tendency to glorify a successful athlete out of all due proportion need not deceive themselves that such has not always been the custom. The "Red Grange sweaters" and "Babe Ruth chewing gum" are not products of twentieth century invention. They were known in 700 B. C. The Olympionikae, as the victors then were known, were showered with every conceivable honor and opportunity for living in luxury ever after.

BASEBALL HISTORY HAS A WAY OF REPEATING ITSELF

YEAR AGO YANKEES WALTZED INTO FIRST PLACE, WINNING SIX GAMES

THIS SEASON TO DATE THEY ARE ONLY UNDEFEATED CLUB IN EITHER LEAGUE

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Writer)

New York, April 17—Baseball history has a way of repeating itself.

A year ago the New York Yankees waltzed right into first place in the American League by winning six games before sustaining their first defeat, after which they never were headed.

This season, to date, the Yankees are the only undefeated club in either league and the pace they are setting, and the quality of the opposition with which they are meeting, justifies the belief of their supporters that they will cut out an even faster pace than that of 1927.

There are many queer things about the current major league season, but none of them is the way the world's champions are playing baseball. Deprived of their second baseman and a couple of pitchers, the Yankees have set out to win ball games in a most convincing, matter-of-fact manner. Babe Ruth went through the first three games without a home run, but Lou Gehrig has produced a couple, and the pitching furnished by Herb Pennock, Wilcy Moore, Waite Hoyt and George Pipgras has left little to be desired.

Miller Huggins had Pennock ready to shoot right back at the Red Sox this afternoon, while several other Yankee twirlers are clamoring for a chance to break into the winning column while the winning is good.

The Philadelphia Athletics, before the start of the 1927 season, presented the same sort of theoretical threat to the supremacy of the Yankees that they did when the current season opened. Last year, they collapsed at the tossing out of the first ball and failed to win one game in the opening series in New York. At the present moment, the Athletics are the only club in either league which has not won a single game. They have been defeated three times.

The Chicago White Sox won their first game of the year yesterday, after Ray Schalk, in disgust, had shaken up his line-up. Simultaneously, and for the same reason, the St. Louis Browns met with their first defeat of 1928.

The Boston Braves also broke into the "games won" column for the first time yesterday, while the New York Giants dropped their first of the year when old Cy Williams clouted a homer in the eighth inning.

Before the season opened, two clubs which were expected to start fast from the respective barriers were the Braves in the National League race and the Detroit Tigers in the American.

The Braves cannot be held too lightly for their slow start, for they have encountered some strong pitching, and were victims of little Andy Cohen in the opener. The Detroit Tigers, however, have been a pronounced disappointment. They could be pronounced rotten with perfect fairness.

George Moriarity's winter trades went back on him, and the players upon whom he has counted most have thrown him down. The Tigers have made 15 errors in six games thus far, and many of the misplays have been directly responsible for their defeat.

Russell Creamery chalked up its first victory of the season last night by defeating Nash-Finch Co., 15 to 12. Elling and Lowe hit homers for the losers while Daniels hit a home run for the winners.

Tonight two undefeated teams will meet when the American Railway Express Co., plays the J. C. Penney Co. Both teams have displayed considerable strength in the past games and tonight's winner will be one of the favorites for this year's title.

Playing a postponed game the N. P. Storeroom will meet the O'Brien Merc. Co. at the Koering grounds tonight.

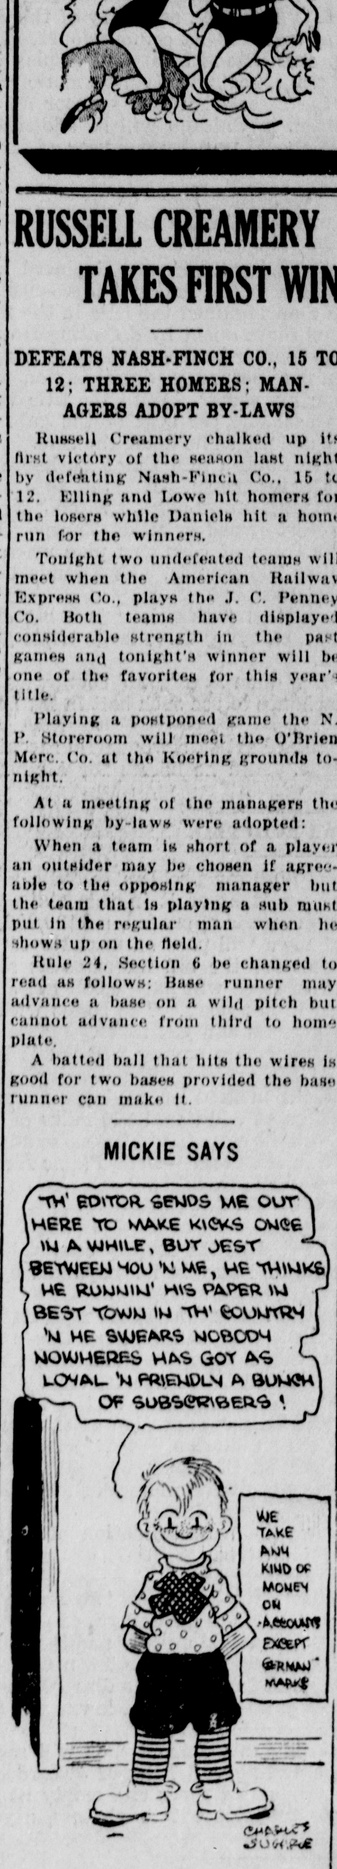

At a meeting of the managers the following by-laws were adopted:

When a team is short of a player an outsider may be chosen if agreeable to the opposing manager but the team that is playing a sub must put in the regular man when he shows up on the field.

Rule 24, Section 6 be changed to read as follows: Base runner may advance a base on a wild pitch but cannot advance from third to home plate.

A batted ball that hits the wires is good for two bases provided the base runner can make it.

TUESDAY, APRIL 17, 1928

APRIL 15 TO OPEN 10,000 LAKES WEEK

CITIZENS of Minnesota are being asked by Governor Christianson to lend their utmost support to the $75,000 advertising and publicity campaign being waged by the Ten Thousand Lakes Association to sell the state to the nation and the world.

The campaign will open officially on April 15 according to proclamation of the governor and approximately 400 communities will cooperate in raising the necessary funds to carry on the work successfully during 1928. The week beginning April 15 will be known as Ten Thousand Lakes Week.

The 1928 advertising and publicity campaign of the Ten Thousand Lakes Association will mean more to the people of the state in general than any previous campaign, say officers of the organization, because of the fact that the work has been broadened to include more activities than ever before. This year agriculture will be given more prominence than ever. Advertisements to be placed by the association in the national field invite inquiries for farm property. Motion pictures which were taken last summer and which will be used throughout the United States to tell the story of Minnesota contain many agricultural scenes. The new illustrated Minnesota booklet will have an agricultural section and many are the efforts that will be used to especially attract new citizens to the state.

Work on the 1928 advertising and publicity campaign is now well under way according to H. C. Hotaling, secretary of the Ten Thousand Lakes Association and state tourist commissioner. More than $30,000 has already been contracted in national display advertising and the thousands of maps, booklets, the new motion pictures and the exhibit which the association will sponsor at the National Outdoor Life Exposition in Chicago will be additional. Mr. Hotaling believes that 1928 should be a banner year as far as the tourist business is concerned.

JOHNNY LAYTON WINS BILLIARD CROWN

JOHNNY LAYTON, who is well known in our Brainerd lake region, is once more the possessor of the national three-cushion billiard crown. The St. Louis man regained the title in the final match of the two weeks national tournament by defeating Hoppe.

Layton played as calmly as though he were fishing at his old haunts in Minnesota. By winning Saturday night, Layton took the title for the fourth time in his career. With the title went the diamond medal, $1,200 in cash, 24 per cent of the gate receipts and $250 a month salary as long as he holds the title.

His sportsmen friends have dubbed him Chief Pushacue in recognition of his prowess as a fisherman. For the past four years he has spent his summers at Pine Lodge, two and a half miles from Merrifield, at the resort owned by W. E. Thorpe. His greatest exploit was in a day's catch of Northern pike when he landed seven weighing a total of 105 pounds. As a guide he is eagerly sought by visiting sportsmen.

He uses artificial bait, and his trustiest lure is a big chub creek minnow, eight inches long, carrying three large triple gang hooks. Its color is scale green.

"I picked that plug up for a dime at a 'grab' counter in St. Louis," said he. "There is no chance to use such bait in St. Louis and so they sold it cheap."

Mr. Layton is a polished billiard artist, a wonderful raconteur and a sportsman par excellence. And he boosts for Minnesota lakes every chance he gets.

THE IOWA ROAD PLAN

IOWA proposes to meet its highway problem in quite a different manner from the way we went at it in this state. Its legislature has passed, and its governor approved, a $100,000,000 bond bill, which the voters of Iowa will pass on next November. The strong legislative sentiment for the bill indicates its statewide popularity. With this sum Iowa will pave 4,933 miles and gravel 1,732 miles, all finished in six years. The bonds with interest will be met from auto licenses and gas taxes.

The Iowa notion is that immediate paving will result in so great saving to motorists that the project will not actually cost them anything. The Minnesota method of paving as surplus funds accumulate, which gives us an additional 100 miles of paving a year, will require us to wait 49 years to get the same amount of concrete that Iowa will get in six years.—Belle Plaine Herald.

ROTARY CONVENTION AT SUPERIOR

BRAINERD is to be represented at the Rotary convention at Superior, Wis., on May 3 and 4 and may be accompanied by the Brainerd Ladies band.

Rotary club leaders from Canada and neighboring states will be among the principal speakers who will address this annual ninth district conference of the Rotary International, as announced by Carl Newman, president of the Superior club.

Speakers will include Fred Kerr, member of the Winnipeg Rotary club, and professor of religious education at the University of Manitoba; Bruce Gates of Waterloo, Iowa, former governor of the eleventh district, and W. C. Hewitt of Oshkosh, Wis., head of the department of government and finance of the Oshkosh State Teachers College, and Dr. Elmer Myers.

Plans are being made for the accommodation of approximately 1,000 Rotarians and their wives.

SPRING had a little setback Sunday when two and a half inches of snow fell and winter seemed to have regained possession of our lake region. The snow has melted quickly and the fall was not by any means the equal of what fell in the Twin Cities and St. Cloud. Today every vestige of the snow has disappeared and the fall of snow has acted as a great fertilizer of lawns and fields.

NFW that Spring is dancing into Baudette, it will soon be time to doll up yards, streets and alleys. Piles of discarded egg shells, vacant tomato cans, untenanted shoes and empty pop bottles make poor beauty spots to point out to visitors, says the Baudette Region.

CONSIDERABLE building will be done in Aitkin this year. The largest single piece of construction will be the senior high school addition to cost $80,000. Considerable realty is changing hands and a number of homes and other buildings will be constructed.

BRAINERD and districts near like St. Mathias are being afflicted with a run of a mild attack of the flu. At least the sufferers say it carries all the debilitating attack, head ache and bone ache of the flu. See your family doctor when the first symptom arrives.

VOLUME 6 BRAINERD HIGH SCHOOL, TUESDAY, APRIL 17, 1928 NUMBER 29

FIRST CALL FOR TRACK

TWENTY BOYS TURN OUT FOR FIRST PRACTICE OF SEASON

About twenty boys turned out in response for the first call for track. This, however, is not the definite number of men that are to be on the squad. Because of the difficulty in reaching all the boys and in the weather conditions the entire number has not been definitely settled.

Track is about the only sport in which individual ability is outstanding. This sport does more in showing one's individual characteristics and physique than any other sport. And because of its growing importance in the athletic world, it should be most attractive to the young athlete. A person has no idea of his ability to run and jump until he has given organized track training a trial. In most other lines of sport he knows whether he is "good" in the necessary qualities that go to get him a position on the team, but this is not true in track. Often an individual may think that he is of little value but after a few practises he begins to see his ability and develops it until he is a finished product for the race track.

Inter-class track is going to be held very soon, so it is the wish of Coach Kasch that all boys, from the lower classes especially, turn out to practise in order to build up their endurance so as to make a good showing for their class.

Track is a growing sport and is to be given more time than any other spring activity. It is taking the place of baseball; and in the eyes of the colleges and universities it is of a great deal more importance than baseball.

Any boys that are interested, who have not already signed up, please see Mr. Kasch and he will give you the necessary information for the primary training which is being done at present.

PLAN FOR INTERCLASS TENNIS CONTESTS

An interclass tennis tournament will be held as soon as the weather permits. The contest will be played on the elimination basis. The games will be mixed doubles, that is, a boy and a girl on each side.

As many people as possible should sign up. People from all different classes. Hand in your name to one of the committee as soon as possible. It is desired that at least thirty people should sign up.

STAFFS MEET TUES. TO GET DEADLINES

A meeting of both the weekly and the annual staffs of the Brainonian was held Thursday at three-thirty. The members were given assignments, and told to have all articles in as soon as possible. The cover for the Annual has been decided upon, and the order of the contents arranged. It is expected to be in the hands of the printers in about two weeks. As there was nothing else to talk about, the meeting ended.

I'M THE GUY

I'm the guy who just loves to find fault with other people. Of course, I haven't any grounds for my statements, but so long as I think they are true, they are true. I'm the person who lazily leans on the radiator and makes sarcastic remarks to my partner in gossip about the people who pass by the in hall. Of course, I know that I shouldn't say things about people unless I have a reason, but I'm privileged with freedom of speech, therefore nobody can stop me from talking. When I see a girl and boy from Augsburg going out together, I shout from the house tops, "They're engaged!" I tell my partners about the scandal. When I'm asked as to the truthfulness and soundness of my statements, I try to look blank and guiltless. I don't go directly to the person to criticize his actions, but I tell my story to other people. I get a great "kick" out of "kidding" people. Sometimes I'm even able to convince others that what I say is correct. I'm quite important. I'm the originator of much gossip. I feel that I have accomplished a great deal when I can get the stone rolling so that it will gather no moss.—Exchange.

Normal Training Notes

Mrs. Hartley visited the Department before vacation to talk about applications for next year. The girls began writing for schools but as yet no one is placed.

The girls have started an art class under the supervision of Miss Sailor who teaches art in the grade schools. At present they are working on wall hangings; the design is worked out in crayon colorings.

This week several changes will be made in the teaching program. Those teaching in primary work will probably have work in the upper grades while those who have not as yet taught primary classes will take those children.

Esther G. complains that we "pick on her" but I hope she will forgive us just this once. The class was discussing possibilities of World Peace when Esther solemnly declared, "I don't believe there ever will be world peace while I'm living." This remark was surprising inasmuch as Esther is a very peaceable sort of a person—usually.

OPERETTA PRACTICES HELD AT COURT HOUSE

No, the operetta will no be discontinued but will be given in the second week in May. Miss Rickard says that most of the books were burned but that the work will go on as if nothing had happened. The choruses have been practicing regularly in the old court house and are doing very nicely.

SPRING

Spring, Spring, beautiful Spring,
Dancing with sunlight and birds on the wing.
Bushes and shrubs are beginning to grow,
Grass springing up from the half melted snow.

Balmy winds blowing fresh as they pass,
Blowing dead winds over the cool, verdant grass.
Night comes and the moon goes sailing on high,
With its pale white light in the star speckled sky.

The parks are all filled with children set free,
Running and playing and shouting with glee.
There a youth sits in heavenly bliss,
Writing fool poems that are almost like this.

HI-Y ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

GAY KINNEY IS PRESIDENT AND JOE HEALD VICE-PRESIDENT

By ROGER KLEVEN

Last Wednesday the Hi-Y club held its annual election of officers. As there was no meeting during the week, the members cast their votes some time during the day at the Y. M. C. A. The newly elected officers will assume their duties at the start of school next fall when the club resumes its activities. The new officers are:

Gaylord Kinney—President.
Joe Heald—Vice President.
Richard Ebert—Secretary.
Elwood Johnson—Treasurer.

The club had a very successful season this year with about thirty members which is the most it has had during its existence. With most of the members back next year we hope for another very successful year. There will be no more regular meetings this year. A wiener roast or something of the kind will take place, however, on a date to be announced in the future.

SENIORS HEAR AN INTERESTING SPEAKER

On Monday Prof. Miron Morral, a student of Oxford and a Rhodes scholar, now professor of journalism and Dean of men at Hamline university spoke to some of the seniors, in Miss Johnson's room. He spoke of the purpose of education, as not only to pass away time but to broaden the mind. Toward the end of his interesting talk, he told about Hamline university. This college, he said, is not trying to influence us all to go there, but it wants its fair share of the best young people of the state. It is not a school that teaches the finished course of dentistry, medicine and others, but it offers a very good preparatory course for them. We all benefitted by his talk and hope some B. H. S. students will take advantage of it and go to Hamline next year.

THREE PERCENTERS TO HAVE IMPOSING RITES

Mr. Cobb in his talk Monday morning before the High School assembly said that all the trouble in society is started by three per cent of the population. He told the student body that the three per cent will probably cause a lot of trouble and annoyance in the school, and asked the ninety-seven per cent to co-operate in keeping order.

Miss Tornstrom announced that all students who, by their actions, show the faculty they desire to belong to the Three Percenters' Club, will be promptly initiated into the organization in her office and will be given the privilege of being absent from all classes.

No report has been given on the membership of the club, but we hope it won't prosper.

You'll surely want an annual when you learn how perfectly beautiful they are going to be. Beside having many new features it is going to be very attractive in appearance. The cover and fly-leaf are to be of Cadiz blue decorated in gold and black. The picture of the pine tree used on the fly-leaf of last year's annual is to be used again — this time in black. We know you'll want one when you see them but it may be too late then—so, do it now!

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

April 17, 1903

Dr. R. A. Beise, of Sauk Center, expects to locate in this city to practice medicine. He was in the city to attend the medical society meeting and seemed very much taken up with the city and its surroundings. He has spoken for the rooms in the Wise block over the Swartz drug store.

The doctor is a son-in-law of Senator Kellar, of Sauk Center. Of course everybody in northern Minnesota knows Senator Kellar.

Everything is in readiness for the sawing season at the Brainerd Lumber Co's. mill and it is expected now that the mill will start up on Wednesday. About the same crew as was worked last year will be put on again this season.

The company has an abundance of logs and they look for a very prosperous year.

Those who play ball among the boys of the city have been out practising some each evening of late and in a short time now some games will be announced.

The members of the high school team have also been putting in some good work and in a short time they will play their first game of the season.

The high school dancing club will give a party Friday evening in Walker hall.

TUESDAY, APRIL 17, 1928

APRIL 15 TO OPEN 10,000 LAKES WEEK

CITIZENS of Minnesota are being asked by Governor Christianson to lend their utmost support to the $75,000 advertising and publicity campaign being waged by the Ten Thousand Lakes Association to sell the state to the nation and the world.

The campaign will open officially on April 15 according to proclamation of the governor and approximately 400 communities will cooperate in raising the necessary funds to carry on the work successfully during 1928. The week beginning April 15 will be known as Ten Thousand Lakes Week.

The 1928 advertising and publicity campaign of the Ten Thousand Lakes Association will mean more to the people of the state in general than any previous campaign, say officers of the organization, because of the fact that the work has been broadened to include more activities than ever before. This year agriculture will be given more prominence than ever. Advertisements to be placed by the association in the national field invite inquiries for farm property. Motion pictures which were taken last summer and which will be used throughout the United States to tell the story of Minnesota contain many agricultural scenes. The new illustrated Minnesota booklet will have an agricultural section and many are the efforts that will be used to especially attract new citizens to the state.

Work on the 1928 advertising and publicity campaign is now well under way according to H. C. Hotaling, secretary of the Ten Thousand Lakes Association and state tourist commissioner. More than $30,000 has already been contracted in national display advertising and the thousands of maps, booklets, the new motion pictures and the exhibit which the association will sponsor at the National Outdoor Life Exposition in Chicago will be additional. Mr. Hotaling believes that 1928 should be a banner year as far as the tourist business is concerned.

JOHNNY LAYTON WINS BILLIARD CROWN

JOHNNY LAYTON, who is well known in our Brainerd lake region, is once more the possessor of the national three-cushion billiard crown. The St. Louis man regained the title in the final match of the two weeks national tournament by defeating Hoppe.

Layton played as calmly as though he were fishing at his old haunts in Minnesota. By winning Saturday night, Layton took the title for the fourth time in his career. With the title went the diamond medal, $1,200 in cash, 24 per cent of the gate receipts and $250 a month salary as long as he holds the title.

His sportsmen friends have dubbed him Chief Pushacue in recognition of his prowess as a fisherman. For the past four years he has spent his summers at Pine Lodge, two and a half miles from Merrifield, at the resort owned by W. E. Thorpe. His greatest exploit was in a day's catch of Northern pike when he landed seven weighing a total of 105 pounds. As a guide he is eagerly sought by visiting sportsmen.

He uses artificial bait, and his trustiest lure is a big chub creek minnow, eight inches long, carrying three large triple gang hooks. Its color is scale green.

"I picked that plug up for a dime at a 'grab' counter in St. Louis," said he. "There is no chance to use such bait in St. Louis and so they sold it cheap."

Mr. Layton is a polished billiard artist, a wonderful raconteur and a sportsman par excellence. And he boosts for Minnesota lakes every chance he gets.

THE IOWA ROAD PLAN

IOWA proposes to meet its highway problem in quite a different manner from the way we went at it in this state. Its legislature has passed, and its governor approved, a $100,000,000 bond bill, which the voters of Iowa will pass on next November. The strong legislative sentiment for the bill indicates its statewide popularity. With this sum Iowa will pave 4,933 miles and gravel 1,732 miles, all finished in six years. The bonds with interest will be met from auto licenses and gas taxes.

The Iowa notion is that immediate paving will result in so great saving to motorists that the project will not actually cost them anything. The Minnesota method of paving as surplus funds accumulate, which gives us an additional 100 miles of paving a year, will require us to wait 49 years to get the same amount of concrete that Iowa will get in six years.—Belle Plaine Herald.

ROTARY CONVENTION AT SUPERIOR

BRAINERD is to be represented at the Rotary convention at Superior, Wis., on May 3 and 4 and may be accompanied by the Brainerd Ladies band.

Rotary club leaders from Canada and neighboring states will be among the principal speakers who will address this annual ninth district conference of the Rotary International, as announced by Carl Newman, president of the Superior club.

Speakers will include Fred Kerr, member of the Winnipeg Rotary club, and professor of religious education at the University of Manitoba; Bruce Gates of Waterloo, Iowa, former governor of the eleventh district, and W. C. Hewitt of Oshkosh, Wis., head of the department of government and finance of the Oshkosh State Teachers College, and Dr. Elmer Myers.

Plans are being made for the accommodation of approximately 1,000 Rotarians and their wives.

SPRING had a little setback Sunday when two and a half inches of snow fell and winter seemed to have regained possession of our lake region. The snow has melted quickly and the fall was not by any means the equal of what fell in the Twin Cities and St. Cloud. Today every vestige of the snow has disappeared and the fall of snow has acted as a great fertilizer of lawns and fields.

NFW that Spring is dancing into Baudette, it will soon be time to doll up yards, streets and alleys. Piles of discarded egg shells, vacant tomato cans, untenanted shoes and empty pop bottles make poor beauty spots to point out to visitors, says the Baudette Region.

CONSIDERABLE building will be done in Aitkin this year. The largest single piece of construction will be the senior high school addition to cost $80,000. Considerable realty is changing hands and a number of homes and other buildings will be constructed.

BRAINERD and districts near like St. Mathias are being afflicted with a run of a mild attack of the flu. At least the sufferers say it carries all the debilitating attack, head ache and bone ache of the flu. See your family doctor when the first symptom arrives.

VOLUME 6 BRAINERD HIGH SCHOOL, TUESDAY, APRIL 17, 1928 NUMBER 29

FIRST CALL FOR TRACK

TWENTY BOYS TURN OUT FOR FIRST PRACTICE OF SEASON

About twenty boys turned out in response for the first call for track. This, however, is not the definite number of men that are to be on the squad. Because of the difficulty in reaching all the boys and in the weather conditions the entire number has not been definitely settled.

Track is about the only sport in which individual ability is outstanding. This sport does more in showing one's individual characteristics and physique than any other sport. And because of its growing importance in the athletic world, it should be most attractive to the young athlete. A person has no idea of his ability to run and jump until he has given organized track training a trial. In most other lines of sport he knows whether he is "good" in the necessary qualities that go to get him a position on the team, but this is not true in track. Often an individual may think that he is of little value but after a few practises he begins to see his ability and develops it until he is a finished product for the race track.

Inter-class track is going to be held very soon, so it is the wish of Coach Kasch that all boys, from the lower classes especially, turn out to practise in order to build up their endurance so as to make a good showing for their class.

Track is a growing sport and is to be given more time than any other spring activity. It is taking the place of baseball; and in the eyes of the colleges and universities it is of a great deal more importance than baseball.

Any boys that are interested, who have not already signed up, please see Mr. Kasch and he will give you the necessary information for the primary training which is being done at present.

PLAN FOR INTERCLASS TENNIS CONTESTS

An interclass tennis tournament will be held as soon as the weather permits. The contest will be played on the elimination basis. The games will be mixed doubles, that is, a boy and a girl on each side.

As many people as possible should sign up. People from all different classes. Hand in your name to one of the committee as soon as possible. It is desired that at least thirty people should sign up.

Harmonious bursts of exquisite melody flow forth from Miss Laipple's room in the basement of our temporary quarters in the Methodist church to gladden the hearts of the weary students passing to and fro. Upon examination it is found that this delightful music issued forth from the throat of a small black and gold linnet from which the students of Miss Laipple's biology classes are gaining their knowledge of our feathered friends.

You'll surely want an annual when you learn how perfectly beautiful they are going to be. Beside having many new features it is going to be very attractive in appearance. The cover and fly-leaf are to be of Cadiz blue decorated in gold and black. The picture of the pine tree used on the fly-leaf of last year's annual is to be used again — this time in black. We know you'll want one when you see them but it may be too late then—so, do it now!

NINE CITY EMPLOYEES GET SALARY INCREASE

Ten Dollar a Month Raise Given Two Chiefs, Firemen, Police and Sanitary Policeman

SCHOOL REQUEST GRANTED

Rest Room at City Hall to Become Sewing Room During School Year

Nine city employees will go on a new salary basis starting May 1 by reason of a resolution adopted on motion of Aldermen V. F. Quanstrom and Andrew Wesley at the city council meeting last night which gave the employees in question a ten dollar a month raise.

Those affected by the salary increase are: fire chief, three fire truck drivers, chief of police, three policemen, and sanitary policeman.

A vote of ayes and nays on the question recorded two opposing votes, Aldermen Martin Anderson and C. G. Holmstrom.

Alderman Anderson stated that he wished to make it plain why he voted against the resolution. He said he was not opposed to increases in wages but that in this case he believed that it was not properly brought before the council in that the men themselves had not requested a raise, but that it had been brought on by the request of an alderman.

Alderman Quanstrom first broached the matter at the previous council meeting and it was deferred to last night's council meeting. He was heartily in favor of allowing the men a raise even though they had not asked for it because he felt that the men were underpaid and that they deserved the increase.

Alderman Holmstrom at first requested to be excused from voting. On chiding from Alderman Quanstrom to vote either way, Alderman Holmstrom voted against it.

When asked if the policemen had ever approached him for a raise in salary, Mayor Frank E. Little stated that they had not while Fire Chief McGinn stated that the firemen had never directly approached him for a raise but had "hinted" that they required a raise.

The motion as first made by Alderman Quanstrom was to the effect that eight of the employees receive the raise. Alderman Wesley stated that he would second the resolution if the fire chief was included in the number. Alderman Quanstrom agreed and the motion was adopted.

A request outlined in a petition signed by 80 per cent of the householders affected on Terrace avenue near the cemetery hill for the installation of a sewer was referred to the street and sewer committee, city engineer, and the aldermen of the second ward to bring in a report to the next regular meeting.

Alderman Martin Anderson stated that the proposition required considerable study in the way of outlining the course the sewer should run for the benefit of all property owners there.

Grant School Request

A delegation from the Brainerd Board of Education headed by G. D. LaBar, president of the board, appeared before the council and requested use of the rest room in the northwest corner of the basement in the city hall to meet additional space required for the housing of the high school students.

Mr. LaBar stated that the room could be utilized as a sewing room and that it would be vacant again for the summer vacation about the time the heavy influx of tourists started. He said that it would be necessary for them to install a ventilator there.

On motion of Aldermen W. J. Hall and Andrew Wesley the request was granted.

Refuse Show Dates

An application was received for a license from the Lew Henderson Players, of Hutchinson, Minn., for permission to hold their tent show here for one week commencing June 18. The request was not granted as the dates conflict with conventions scheduled in the city at that time. The company had previously made application for a license to operate at a later date, this having also been turned down as their dates conflicted with conventions booked to take place in Brainerd and vicinity.

An application tendered by Miles Guin for a license to operate an auto salvage and wreckage business at 218 South 3rd street was granted subject to the approval of the aldermen from the first and third wards. The license will be granted with the assurance that the former location of the wreckage establishment in Northeast Brainerd is cleared up and placed in an orderly shape.

An application tendered by S. W. Potter and John Dahl for a license to operate an auto salvage and wreckage estabilshment at 402 S. E. 12th street was not granted, when aldermen voiced their objections to it, claiming that the men were operating on land rented by them and that there was no definite assurance that the place would be cleaned up by them if they decided to quit business.

Asks $34.15 Damages

Claiming damage to the amount of $35.15 to produce and household equipment in the basement of his home at 901 11th street S. E., said to have been caused by the flooding of a sewer on April 2, Arnold Hill in a letter read at the meeting asked that a settlement be made. The letter was referred to the city attorney, city engineer and street committee.

The city engineer and street committee were instructed to see what could be done relative to improvement of the culverts at 14th and Rosewood streets reported to be in poor shape.

Mayor F. E. Little requested that the road leading to the city dumping grounds be put in better shape. It was referred to the city engineer and street committee.

On motion of Aldermen Martin Anderson and Ernest Ritari, the city engineer was instructed to put in a temporary fence protection at the fill immediately. Ten cement posts of the old guard rail were recently destroyed when an automobile crashed into the fence, damaging the ten posts in addition to damaging his own car badly.

The city engineer and street committee were given power to act in the matter of grading cemetery hill road.

Rev. Alfred J. Fieldus of Little Falls, former Toronto pastor and ex-Canadian soldier, began his special services last evening in the Mill Mission of the First Baptist church. He spoke on teh subject, "The Bitterness of Jesus Cup," and drew from this many timely and practical lessons for the Christian life.

"Jesus shrank from the cup that was pressed to his lips in Gethsemane," he stated, "but not because he was a coward, nor because he feared the physical violence that should come to him. It was because the purity and holiness of his nature revolted against assuming the impure and unholy sins of humanity. It was a natural revulsion of a holy nature to that which is unholy. And yet Jesus prayed, 'Not as I will, but as thou wilt.' Thus through His obedience unto death, he made salvation possible to us. Mike Murray, Mrs. J. A. Forrester Stress Principles of the Organization

Initiation of candidates marked the important order of business at the regular meeting of the Carl Sidney Hanson Post, No. 255, American Legion last evening in the Iron Exchange hall.

Mike Murray, Past 6th District Commander, well known among legionnairres of the state as "The Silver Tongued Orator", delivered a most inspiring talk on principles and traditions of the American Legion and the G. A. R., stressing loyalty to the Legion and G. A. R., in upholding these principles and traditions, their most treasured possessions.

Mrs. J. A. Forrester, president of the Sixth District of Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion, spoke briefly on the history of the ladies auxiliary and reviewed the welfare work of the local chapter commending them for their efforts. Mrs. Forrester also spoke of the many benefits to be derived by both the Legion and Auxiliary meeting jointly and expressed the hope that this would continue.

Folowing the speakers, the program was launched into the fun and frolic of the evening, featuring the moot court with George Bates, presiding as the typical Irish judge, Basil T. Heath as prosecuting attorney, Arthur J. Sullivan as public defender. The cases brought to docket were those of George Ribbel, Frank Johnson and "Speck" Hanson, accused of various and sundry offenses and in each case the verdict was rendered against the defendant much to the amusement of the audience.

Folowing the moot court various pleasing numbers were rendered by the ever willing American Legion quartet in their last apearance with the present membership. Dancing and a luncheon followed the program.

A most successful meeting was enjoyed by all and it is the hope of the committee that these large meetings shall continue.

ALL STAR CONCERT CAPTIVATES R. A. M.

Members and Wives Warm to Splendid Interpretation of Music and Song

WCCO ARTISTS HEARD

Members of Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra Add Fine Art to Most Enjoyable Evening

One of the best musical events ever heard in Brainerd was presented by the Royal Arch of the Masonic lodge on the initiatory occasion of thirty-six candidates. The concert was preceded by a banquet at 6:30 o'clock.

It was what might be termed an "all start concert" which makes individual comment difficult.

The program was opened by a six piece orchestra. The performers were from the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra and WCCO entertainers. They played selections from the musical romance "Vagabond King." Their interpretation tone, and ensemble work were a revelation of what artistic professional performance can attain. The personnel of the orchestra was as follows: violin, Mr. Colf; cello, Lyle Perry; harp, Henry J. Williams; trumpet, Mr. Wagner; saxophone, Jack Biggins; drums, Frank Hren; piano, Paul Oberg.

The orchestra number was followed with a violin solo by Mr. Colf, accompanied by the harp. He played "Meditation," from the opera "Thais" and a "Minuett" by Mr. Czerwonky, former concert meister of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra. Mr. Colf played with such a rich, singing tone and with such warmth of feeling that one wished he might be heard in an entire recital.

The Arcana quartet, Messrs. Walter L. Scott, William Spargo, James Spargo, and Alexander Hamilton, sang two groups of songs. The enthusiastic applause which greeted each song bore testimony to the pleasure derived from them by the audience. Perhaps the "Laughing Chorus," which afforded the men an opportunity to offer a good bit of acting so well done that the contagion of their mirth was transmitted to the audience, was the most popular of their ten songs. It was interesting in itself for although the performers were apparently convulsed with spontaneous mirth there was a perceptible melody running throughout the chorus.

One of the best treats of the evening was the harp solos. It is unusual to hear a harp in our town, rather removed as it is from musical centers, especially as harpists are comparatively rare. To hear one of Mr. Williams ability and reputation is still more uncommon. He has been harp soloist with the "Symphony" for twenty years.

He played an "Impromptu" by Oberthur and for encores the "Marionettes," 'a clever composition and "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms."

Walter Mallory, master tenor from WCCO completely charmed the audience with his generous offering of songs, some with piano and some with harp accompaniments. Those who hear him over the radio are familiar with his fine voice and the directness with which he uses it in putting his song over to the audience. Although he sang songs so well known that every note and word could be anticipated he gave each one such an individual interpretation and every one was so charmed with the splendor of his voice that he was easily one of the most popular entertainers of the evening.

All the evening one was conscious of the pleasure it was to see the performer, feel the magnetism of his personality, and to hear the music without the interception of mechanical device.

Mr. Perry, the cellist, played "Berceuse" from "Jocelyn" by Godard the "The Swan" by Saint Saens. Like the harp, the cello is all too rarely heard, and the apparent master of his instrument by Mr. Perry, made his numbers a joy to hear.

Donald C. Bennyhoff gave the comedy touch to the evening. He entertained with accordion, Italian, and Dutch dialect numbers and several magic acts. There was something, so naive about his manner that the audience soon succumbed most whole heartedly to his act.

Paul Obrg, pianist, played by special request. He not only interested the audience by the fact that he was staff accompanist with WCCO but that he is brother to Grace Oberg Lindquist, formerly a teacher in the Brainerd high school. He played the "Golewogs", "Cakewalk" and a number by Schubert.

The orchestra closed the evening's entertainment with the "Phantom Brigade."

It was a long program but so excellent in every detail that everyone would have considered it an unalloyed pleasure to have listened an hour longer.

"Listening In" Injures Telephone Service

The electric current on a telephone line may be compared to water flowing through a pipe. If the pipe springs a leak, the flow is reduced at the other end.

Several telephone receivers off the hook at the same time, weaken the flow of electricity and make it difficult to carry on a conversation.

Initiation of candidates marked the important order of business at the regular meeting of the Carl Sidney Hanson Post, No. 255, American Legion last evening in the Iron Exchange hall.

Mike Murray, Past 6th District Commander, well known among legionnairres of the state as "The Silver Tongued Orator", delivered a most inspiring talk on principles and traditions of the American Legion and the G. A. R., stressing loyalty to the Legion and G. A. R., in upholding these principles and traditions, their most treasured possessions.

Mrs. J. A. Forrester, president of the Sixth District of Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion, spoke briefly on the history of the ladies auxiliary and reviewed the welfare work of the local chapter commending them for their efforts. Mrs. Forrester also spoke of the many benefits to be derived by both the Legion and Auxiliary meeting jointly and expressed the hope that this would continue.

Folowing the speakers, the program was launched into the fun and frolic of the evening, featuring the moot court with George Bates, presiding as the typical Irish judge, Basil T. Heath as prosecuting attorney, Arthur J. Sullivan as public defender. The cases brought to docket were those of George Ribbel, Frank Johnson and "Speck" Hanson, accused of various and sundry offenses and in each case the verdict was rendered against the defendant much to the amusement of the audience.

Folowing the moot court various pleasing numbers were rendered by the ever willing American Legion quartet in their last apearance with the present membership. Dancing and a luncheon followed the program.

A most successful meeting was enjoyed by all and it is the hope of the committee that these large meetings shall continue.

ALL STAR CONCERT CAPTIVATES R. A. M.

Members and Wives Warm to Splendid Interpretation of Music and Song

WCCO ARTISTS HEARD

Members of Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra Add Fine Art to Most Enjoyable Evening

One of the best musical events ever heard in Brainerd was presented by the Royal Arch of the Masonic lodge on the initiatory occasion of thirty-six candidates. The concert was preceded by a banquet at 6:30 o'clock.

It was what might be termed an "all start concert" which makes individual comment difficult.

The program was opened by a six piece orchestra. The performers were from the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra and WCCO entertainers. They played selections from the musical romance "Vagabond King." Their interpretation tone, and ensemble work were a revelation of what artistic professional performance can attain. The personnel of the orchestra was as follows: violin, Mr. Colf; cello, Lyle Perry; harp, Henry J. Williams; trumpet, Mr. Wagner; saxophone, Jack Biggins; drums, Frank Hren; piano, Paul Oberg.

The orchestra number was followed with a violin solo by Mr. Colf, accompanied by the harp. He played "Meditation," from the opera "Thais" and a "Minuett" by Mr. Czerwonky, former concert meister of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra. Mr. Colf played with such a rich, singing tone and with such warmth of feeling that one wished he might be heard in an entire recital.

The Arcana quartet, Messrs. Walter L. Scott, William Spargo, James Spargo, and Alexander Hamilton, sang two groups of songs. The enthusiastic applause which greeted each song bore testimony to the pleasure derived from them by the audience. Perhaps the "Laughing Chorus," which afforded the men an opportunity to offer a good bit of acting so well done that the contagion of their mirth was transmitted to the audience, was the most popular of their ten songs. It was interesting in itself for although the performers were apparently convulsed with spontaneous mirth there was a perceptible melody running throughout the chorus.

One of the best treats of the evening was the harp solos. It is unusual to hear a harp in our town, rather removed as it is from musical centers, especially as harpists are comparatively rare. To hear one of Mr. Williams ability and reputation is still more uncommon. He has been harp soloist with the "Symphony" for twenty years.

He played an "Impromptu" by Oberthur and for encores the "Marionettes," 'a clever composition and "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms."

Walter Mallory, master tenor from WCCO completely charmed the audience with his generous offering of songs, some with piano and some with harp accompaniments. Those who hear him over the radio are familiar with his fine voice and the directness with which he uses it in putting his song over to the audience. Although he sang songs so well known that every note and word could be anticipated he gave each one such an individual interpretation and every one was so charmed with the splendor of his voice that he was easily one of the most popular entertainers of the evening.

All the evening one was conscious of the pleasure it was to see the performer, feel the magnetism of his personality, and to hear the music without the interception of mechanical device.

Mr. Perry, the cellist, played "Berceuse" from "Jocelyn" by Godard the "The Swan" by Saint Saens. Like the harp, the cello is all too rarely heard, and the apparent master of his instrument by Mr. Perry, made his numbers a joy to hear.

Donald C. Bennyhoff gave the comedy touch to the evening. He entertained with accordion, Italian, and Dutch dialect numbers and several magic acts. There was something, so naive about his manner that the audience soon succumbed most whole heartedly to his act.

Paul Obrg, pianist, played by special request. He not only interested the audience by the fact that he was staff accompanist with WCCO but that he is brother to Grace Oberg Lindquist, formerly a teacher in the Brainerd high school. He played the "Golewogs", "Cakewalk" and a number by Schubert.

The orchestra closed the evening's entertainment with the "Phantom Brigade."

It was a long program but so excellent in every detail that everyone would have considered it an unalloyed pleasure to have listened an hour longer.

"Listening In" Injures Telephone Service

The electric current on a telephone line may be compared to water flowing through a pipe. If the pipe springs a leak, the flow is reduced at the other end.

Several telephone receivers off the hook at the same time, weaken the flow of electricity and make it difficult to carry on a conversation.

Living the golden rule on party telephone lines is essential to good service.

SYNOPSIS

Danny Malone is discharged from the New York police department after it is discovered he was off his beat while bandits raided the Alfred Dayton silk warehouses. A note from his missing brother, Dicky, had called him away but Danny dares not use this in his defense because he believes Dicky is a member of the bandit gang. His sweetheart, Mary Gillen, suspects Alfred Dayton, Jr., is an accomplice of the gang and her suspicions are proved right when Dayton in a drunken moment mentions the name of Bull Savage. Jimmy Wells, a newspaper reporter, has in the meantime induced Danny to take a job with a trucking firm serving the bandits. In a waterfront hiding place, Bull knocks down Dicky Malone after a quarrel at cards.

"I don't care who gives it to me as long as I get it. I've got a date tonight and haven't even got enough to go out with. How much can you give me now Sammy? I've got to have some," said Dayton.

"Vell, dot is too bad," shrugged Sammy, "there is only five dollars by me."

"Aw, cut it out Sammy," interrupted Bull, "give him five thousand in advance."

"Me," squeaked Sammy, "for why I give him monies. I no can get the money myself and I should give it him. Oi . . . for vy?"

Bull winked at him and held one finger by the side of his leg. Sammy saw it and began to take hope.

"Maybe I give you a thousand," he offered.

"Give me all you can spare now," yelled Dayton.

"Five today, dot iss all I have, five, I send you tomorrow. Yes?"

"Give it to me," growled Dayton.

Reluctantly Sammy dived into his pocket and produced a huge roll of bills. The outside one was obviously a one dollar bill, but from the inside he passed five clean centuries to Dayton.

"Dot leaves me wit twenty dollars by me," remarked Sammy.

Bull had a lot of trouble holding his mirth in control. As the door closed behind Dayton he slapped his leg and burst into a roar of laughter.

"What a sap that guy is," he roared. "I wanted to give him a thousand, and now he lets you stick him for another pony. He deserves to be a sucker."

"For vy you give him any?" questioned Sammy.

"Hell, we can't afford for him to get a grouch on. Right now he thinks that he has put one over, and tomorrow we've got to get the stuff over here, and after that he can do as he pleases. Got any more trucks to help ours?"

"No," answered Sammy, spreading his hands in front of him, "but I will hire a man dots got some fastest trucks in New York. I used Larson before. He's good—and cheap."

"As you like," chuckled Bull, "it's in the bag now. All the cops are out looking for the Simonson gang, an' we'll walk away with it. We got plenty of iron-ware anyway."

Then remembering the job he had given to Dick, he walked across to where Dick was unwrapping the oiled linen from around the guns. They were up-to-date Fanchettis, Italian government issue, and smuggled in somehow to meet the demands of the gangland trade.

"Guess these will hold them," he remarked to Sparky.

Sparky leaned over and caressed the breech of the nearest gun. To him they were miracles of destruction and should make his part of the work easy. Suddenly a scowl flitted over his face and he looked at Dick.

"Say, you," he shrilled, "you want to kill us all? How am I goin' to shoot these things if you leave waste in the breech? I think you do it purposely."

Dick cowered away. It was his last effort. He had thought that the dirty waste might go unnoticed and when the gun commenced firing jam in the mechanism. He expected the worst, and as Bull turned around behind him he felt his stomach sink as if into his boots.

Momentarily he expected to feel the burning stab that would mean a bullet in his heart or brain.

Timidly he turned around and looked at Bull. Instead of the look of insane rage that he had expected, Bull was hardly interested. He was still wondering how he could swing still more of the profits from this last raid into his own pocket. As the reason for Sparky's outburst seeped into his brain he threw a disgusted look in Dick's direction and instructed the gunman to help Dick and see that everything was finished okay.

Bull might have been fooled, but Sparky had his suspicions, and when he opened the breech of the gun and found the amount of waste stuffed in there he was morally certain.

"So Dickee Bird tryin' to double cross his friends?" he leered.

"Hell, no," blustered Dick. "I don't know nothing about guns. The damn thing closed too quickly."

"Maybe so," agreed Sparky, "but let me tell you, Dickee, I'm goin' to watch you veree close, and I no miss—maybe I have to kill you after all."

Dick cowered over the machine gun he was cleaning and kept silent. He sensed that Bull despised him too much to think him dangerous and that for that reason he was safe from him. With the Italian it was different. There was a personal angle, and Dick knew that Sparky would like nothing better than to put a bullet into him.

As a matter of fact, there were many members of the gang in the building who were none to sure of their health. The more there were there, the smaller would be the share of the plunder. It was nothing unusual for a gunfight to be the means of increased profits for gangleaders. In this sense Dick was no worse off than a goodly proportion of the gang.

"So, trying to double cross his friends?"

Jimmy visited the room that Danny was living in but that gentleman had already left. It was Weil's idea that with the absolute assurance that Bull was a confederate of Dayton's Danny might be able to throw some light on the possible whereabouts of the gang.

Having missed him there, he proceeded to his office to wait for the call that Danny had agreed to send him at ten o'clock each day. While he was waiting he called Commissioner Leonard and found him almost ready to give it up. Not a clue seemed to be turning up and tomorrow was the end of the time limit.

Jimmy told the police commissioner that he had several new clues, but failed to cheer him much.

"Anything I can do, I'll do," he said, "but I guess I'm about through."

"Like fun you are," replied Jimmy, "there's two or three things that can be done today and believe me, I'm going to do them. All I want from you, is your promise to have plenty of men ready for my call any time today or tonight."

"You've got that if it'll do you any good," was the half-hearted reply.

When Danny made his daily call he had news for Jimmy.

"Sammy the fence is here talking to the boss. I'm to go home and come back for a heavy job tonight. If your guess holds it looks like Sammy is the guy we want to watch."

"Never mind Sammy," answered Jimmy, "all you've got to do is let me know where you are taking the stuff to if you should happen to be sent on the silk job."

"I'll take care of that. I'm darn sure I can trust the guy I'm working with. Long as he gets his excitement he don't care how he gets it. When we load the trucks the boss is sure to pull out ahead of us so I'll slip away to the phone in the building, there's sure to be one an' if its open I'll call your number an' leave the address. If that phone's dead I'll slip away sometime and make the call. You've got to be mighty slippy for I'm not going to have time to make any speeches."

"Sure that sounds right. I'll be downtown myself, but I'll leave someone I can trust at the desk and he'll phone me. Be careful of one thing though, if you get caught you crab the whole game—and you'll get the works."

"Aw, who the hell cares," grunted Danny and hung up.

CROOKS CAN'T WIN

From the thrilling FBO Drama starring Ralph Lewis

SYNOPSIS

Danny Malone is discharged from the New York police department after it is discovered he was off his beat while bandits raided the Alfred Dayton silk warehouses. A note from his missing brother, Dicky, had called him away but Danny dares not use this in his defense because he believes Dicky is a member of the bandit gang. His sweetheart, Mary Gillen, suspects Alfred Dayton, Jr., is an accomplice of the gang and her suspicions are proved right when Dayton in a drunken moment mentions the name of Bull Savage. Jimmy Wells, a newspaper reporter, has in the meantime induced Danny to take a job with a trucking firm serving the bandits. In a waterfront hiding place, Bull knocks down Dicky Malone after a quarrel at cards.

"I don't care who gives it to me as long as I get it. I've got a date tonight and haven't even got enough to go out with. How much can you give me now Sammy? I've got to have some," said Dayton.

"Vell, dot is too bad," shrugged Sammy, "there is only five dollars by me."

"Aw, cut it out Sammy," interrupted Bull, "give him five thousand in advance."

"Me," squeaked Sammy, "for why I give him monies. I no can get the money myself and I should give it him. Oi . . . for vy?"

Bull winked at him and held one of insane rage that he had expected, Bull was hardly interested. He was still wondering how he could swing still more of the profits from this last raid into his own pocket. As the reason for Sparky's outburst seeped into his brain he threw a disgusted look in Dick's direction and instructed the gunman to help Dick and see that everything was finished okay.

Bull might have been fooled, but Sparky had his suspicions, and when he opened the breech of the gun and found the amount of waste stuffed in there he was morally certain.

"So Dickee Bird tryin' to double cross his friends?" he leered.

"Hell, no," blustered Dick. "I don't know nothing about guns. The damn thing closed too quickly."

"Maybe so," agreed Sparky, "but let me tell you, Dickee, I'm goin' to watch you veree close, and I no miss—maybe I have to kill you after all."

Dick cowered over the machine gun he was cleaning and kept silent. He sensed that Bull despised him too much to think him dangerous and that for that reason he was safe from him. With the Italian it was different. There was a personal angle, and Dick knew that Sparky would like nothing better than to put a bullet into him.

As a matter of fact, there were many members of the gang in the finger by the side of his leg. Sammy saw it and began to take hope.

"So, trying to double cross his friends?"

"Maybe I give you a thousand," he offered.

"Give me all you can spare now," yelled Dayton.

"Five today, dot iss all I have, five, I send you tomorrow. Yes?"

"Give it to me," growled Dayton.

Reluctantly Sammy dived into his pocket and produced a huge roll of bills. The outside one was obviously a one dollar bill, but from the inside he passed five clean centuries to Dayton.

"Dot leaves me wit twenty dollars by me," remarked Sammy.

Bull had a lot of trouble holding his mirth in control. As the door closed behind Dayton he slapped his leg and burst into a roar of laughter.

"What a sap that guy is," he roared. "I wanted to give him a thousand, and now he lets you stick him for another pony. He deserves to be a sucker."

"For vy you give him any?" questioned Sammy.

"Hell, we can't afford for him to get a grouch on. Right now he thinks that he has put one over, and tomorrow we've got to get the stuff over here, and after that he can do as he pleases. Got any more trucks to help ours?"

"No," answered Sammy, spreading his hands in front of him, "but I will hire a man dots got some fastest trucks in New York. I used Larson before. He's good—and cheap."

"As you like," chuckled Bull, "it's in the bag now. All the cops are out looking for the Simonson gang, an' we'll walk away with it. We got plenty of iron-ware anyway."

Then remembering the job he had given to Dick, he walked across to where Dick was unwrapping the oiled linen from around the guns. They were up-to-date Fanchettis, Italian government issue, and smuggled in somehow to meet the demands of the gangland trade.

"Guess these will hold them," he remarked to Sparky.

Sparky leaned over and caressed the breech of the nearest gun. To him they were miracles of destruction and should make his part of the work easy. Suddenly a scowl flitted over his face and he looked at Dick.

"Say, you," he shrilled, "you want to kill us all? How am I goin' to shoot these things if you leave waste in the breech? I think you do it purposely."

Dick cowered away. It was his last effort. He had thought that the dirty waste might go unnoticed and when the gun commenced firing jam in the mechanism. He expected the worst, and as Bull turned around behind him he felt his stomach sink as if into his boots.

Momentarily he expected to feel the burning stab that would mean a bullet in his heart or brain.

Timidly he turned around and looked at Bull. Instead of the look building who were none to sure of their health. The more there were there, the smaller would be the share of the plunder. It was nothing unusual for a gunfight to be the means of increased profits for gangleaders. In this sense Dick was no worse off than a goodly proportion of the gang.

Jimmy visited the room that Danny was living in but that gentleman had already left. It was Well's idea that with the absolute assurance that Bull was a confederate of Dayton's Danny might be able to throw some light on the possible whereabouts of the gang.

Having missed him there, he proceeded to his office to wait for the call that Danny had agreed to send him at ten o'clock each day. While he was waiting he called Commissioner Leonard and found him almost ready to give it up. Not a clue seemed to be turning up and tomorrow was the end of the time limit.

Jimmy told the police commissioner that he had several new clues, but failed to cheer him much.

"Anything I can do, I'll do," he said, "but I guess I'm about through."

"Like fun you are," replied Jimmy, "there's two or three things that can be done today and believe me, I'm going to do them. All I want from you, is your promise to have plenty of men ready for my call any time today or tonight."

"You've got that if it'll do you any good," was the half-hearted reply.

When Danny made his daily call he had news for Jimmy.

"Sammy the fence is here talking to the boss. I'm to go home and come back for a heavy job tonight. If your guess holds it looks like Sammy is the guy we want to watch."

"Never mind Sammy," answered Jimmy, "all you've got to do is let me know where you are taking the stuff to if you should happen to be sent on the silk job."

"I'll take care of that. I'm darn sure I can trust the guy I'm working with. Long as he gets his excitement he don't care how he gets it. When we load the trucks the boss is sure to pull out ahead of us so I'll slip away to the phone in the building, there's sure to be one an' if its open I'll call your number an' leave the address. If that phone's dead I'll slip away sometime and make the call. You've got to be mighty slippy for I'm not going to have time to make any speeches."

"Sure that sounds right. I'll be downtown myself, but I'll leave someone I can trust at the desk and he'll phone me. Be careful of one thing though, if you get caught you crab the whole game—and you'll get the works."

"Aw, who the hell cares," grunted Danny and hung up.
